Joe Haggin, the Rainier pitcher, is certainly making a world's record with Pearl Casey's Northwest League team. On his first appearance last Friday he pitched a game against Vancouver in which not a run or hit was secured off his delivery. Last Tuesday he was again in the box at Portland, and shut out the Syrup of White Pine and Tar, the old hard hitting Seattle nine. It is doubt made by a youngster just out of amateur ball upon his first appearance in fast the Columbia County Fair, Sept. 24th company. If his start is any indication at all of what will follow, then there is no doubt but what Joe Haggin, age 19, will be in the National or American league in a very short time.

OUR EXHIBIT.

(From Salem Statesman.)
The main object of Columbia County's exhibit at the state fair is to demonstrate that all portions of the county, from the water level to the summits of the mountains are adapted to the purpose of agriculture. With the exception of the immense vegetables from Sauvies Island, and the garden exhibit from St. Helens, everything in the Columbia County booth was grown on land formerly occupied by heavy fir timber, and some of the best vegetables, fruits and grains were grown at an altitude of 1400 feet above sea level. These facts should be borne in mind when inspecting the really wonderful showing of this county's pro ducts, made by E. H. Flagg, who has charge of the Columbia County's interests this year. The ground covered represents an area of over 500 square miles, the greater portlons of which is still the domain of the logger and timber speculator Vast quantities of timber are being cut annually, and settlers are invited to purchase the logged off land upon which products equal to those shown can be raised by the intelligent husbandman. Mr. Flagg was the first to advertise his county by exhibitions at the Lewis and Clark exposition, and since that time Columbia has been represented yearly at the Oregon state fair. For the purpose of furnishing complete information to prosp ctive settlers, several thousand copies of the county paper, the St. Helen's Mist, have been printed and are being distributed free at the Columbia County booth. Among the products on display in this booth is a wonderful individual display by Asa Holaday, of Scappoose, He shows grown in that section. He has a plate of the famous Gold plum, a very rare fruit. Very few are ever seen on exhibition at this fair. The grasses, vegetables and fruits of the exhibit are of a very high quality. Columbia County also shows en excellent exhibit of butter and Swiss cheese, both of which too first premium at the present A-Y-P ex-
